There are no new developments in the railroad affair over the river. The Cleveland & Pittsburgh is pushing the erection of their new building, which, it is now learned, will be used as a depot. It will be a commodious building, anyhow. The Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling Company have run a temporary track down to the creek, on the proposed Martin's Ferry route, to carry stone and other material for their bridge across the creek. Both companies seem determined, and the contest will doubtless be very bitter.

One of the most peculiar accidents ever chronicled in this vicinity, happened yes terday in the country about nine miles from the city. Mrs. Henry Rider, a for mer resident of the Eighth ward, who now lives in the country near the old tiour mill on Wheeling creek, yesterday of Figure Glenn arrested a drunken man who gave his name as Sam Campbell about one of clock this morning. He was found asleep on the railroad track in front of Polisck's cigar factory.

The Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling has a mile and a half of track laid above Bridgeport, and the officials say they will connect with it if they are forced to bridge the river twice in so doing.

The horse was instantly killed, the tree breaking its back, and Mrs. Rider was so severely hurt that the physicians said she could not live till night. The tree had not been regarded as at all dangerous. It is probable that it had been weakened by decay and the warring of the elements until the light gust of wind caused its fall.

Mrs. Rider had many friends in the city who will sincerely mourn her terrible late.

When this introduction will take place, however, is, the Major says, a matter of doubt. At this time the business is in a state of the worst tagnation imaginable, owing to the present position occupied by the Government. The mines are all closing because the smelters refuse to receive the ore. He says the West is feeling very sore because for years past the Government has been affording protection to the East, and has now turned on the West and given it a black eye, so to speak. He says it was death to that part of the country, and that a war with Mexico would be hailed with delight by the people of Colorado. The feature of the field to-day is three dry holes, all in the Gordon pool. Without getting a sign of oil or gas the Coast Sons and company No. 1, on the Robert Wyley farm, passed through the rock of last resort. It is located about 1,000 feet west of the Associated Producers' Curry lot well. The next is Shirls No. 3, which began to do big work but has fallen off at a rapid rate, and now practically looks like a duster. The sand was of extra quality and the regulation amount was got. Then comes the Associated Producers' No. 1, on the Zelt farm, which is far enough in the Gordon rock to fore-shadow the result. The Zolt and Wyley put in pegs in front of southwestern and western advancement of the deep sand pool.
